THE GENERAL FOODS KITCHENS COOKBOOK

is a wonderful treasury of everything there is to know about planning, preparing and serving food — arranged in an ingenious new way, by “situation.”

What sets this wonderful book apart from all others is that it is the first one to be arranged by meal situation. These are the hundreds of different mealtime circumstances that homemakers face throughout the year — from a single surprise guest at dinner to feeding a crowd. Instead of hunting through a jungle of recipes, a housewife can just turn to the page that answers her particular problem, and there find a whole menu, complete with step-by-step directions for preparation and serving. Never before has such a time-saving, problem-solving approach been used for a cookbook.

And that's not all . . .

The General Foods Kitchens Cookbook is actually three books in one:

- 1. A streamlined cookbook with over 1000 basic, kitchen-tested and re-tested recipes.
- 2. A sensible planning guide with more than 200 easy-to-serve menus for all occasions, plus a dependable measuring table, and 17 food-saving timing charts.
- 3. A cyclopedic storehouse of the best and most ingenious cooking, baking and serving techniques to save time and insure results.

This is not just a recipe book. It will see women through every step of the way to exciting, money-saving meals. It is a unique helper, ready to jump to the rescue whenever there's a meal to serve or a party to give. It will be the basic indispensable cookbook for newlywed housewives as well as for women who have been cooking for years.

*Plus a heavy additional promotion budget for radio and television!

The book that tells what makes Ingrid Bergman tick

Idolized . . . condemned . . . fascinating . . . baffling . . . and unquestionably the most talked-about, wondered-about woman in the world today — that's Ingrid Bergman! Everyone asks: "What is she really like?" In this intimate portrait, a writer who has known her well for sixteen years gives the answers, and often in her own words — there are more than fifty unpublished letters by Miss Bergman included in the book. Because Joseph Steele is able to tell what news reporters and magazine writers have never known, he presents, not a headline celebrity, but a living person, proud, impetuous, tender, passionate, stubborn, and courageous. Advance interest already points to this book as one of the year's biggest biographies. It will cause plenty of talk — the kind that sells books.

FRISKY

This appealing story about a little snow white goat is designed for the first grader to read all by himself. The author, who has taken the twenty-seven striking, amazingly varied photographs on his own farm, has woven a story out of the true experiences of his own children and their little goat.

Frisky's pranks will entertain a child and, at the same time, give him a little moral that all of us need to remember every day.

LITTLE DOG TIM

Here in photographs so real you want to pat the puppy and caress the kittens — and in words and sentences the first grader can read all by himself — is a story of a little dog that was afraid of cats. How he overcame his fears and became friends with them is the lesson the children will learn as they are entertained.

Limited to the primer vocabulary used in the first half of the first grade, this book offers beginning readers a chance to enjoy and benefit from the pleasure and pride they will feel when they read it entirely on their own.

FLASH NEWS

ABOUT BOOKS AHEAD

Reports About Books To Be Published Two or More Months From Now

Louis Ade Boger has covered all kinds of furniture and its uses, from the earliest times to the present, in Furniture Styles (Scribner, Oct.). It will contain 144 pages of illustrations covering 524 examples of chairs, tables, etc.

On Oct. 21 Harper will publish a treasury of the best articles, poetry, and stories from "Harper's Magazine" since 1850—Gentlemen, Scholars and Scoundrels, which presumably does not refer to its distinguished authors, or does it?

Wanderers without much money will be a ready market for Norman B. Ford's Today's Best Buys in Freighter Travel (Harian, Oct.), a complete guide to comfortable and inexpensive ships—plus suggestions for retirement on a freighter at less than it costs to retire at home and stay in one place.

Agee on Film, Volume II, will include film scenarios of "The Night of the Hunter," "The African Queen," and the as yet unproduced "Noa Noa." McDowell, Obolensky will publish it in November.

Lillian Smith's One Hour, to be published by Harcourt, Brace this fall, is said to be about the repercussions when a man is unjustly accused of molesting a young girl.

The New York Graphic Society has announced that it will publish, in 1960, an entirely rewritten edition of Lionello Venturi's two-volume study, Cezanne's Life and Work. One volume will contain the text; the second will show some 2000 Cezanne paintings.

More than a score of writers will contribute to This Is the South, to be edited by Robert West Howard and published this fall by Rand McNally.

The development of magazines for women and their influence upon their readers will be discussed in Helen Woodward's Lady to Woman to Boss, which McDowell, Obolensky will publish in October.

Cornelia Otis Skinner has some interesting and pungent comments on the new padded containers for books in one of the delightful essays that make up The Ape in Me (Houghton Mifflin, Sept. 15). The book will be illustrated by Alajalov.

The full account of the discovery of Coptic documents in Egypt, recently featured in the press, will be told by Jean Duress, a French archaeologist, in The Secret Books of the Egyptian Gnostics, to be published this fall by Viking.

Gusty's Child—Alice Tisdale Hobart's Story is the autobiography of the author of "Oil for the Lamps of China" and other novels. Longmans, Green will publish it in September.

Stuart Cloete's next book will be The Soldier's Peaches and Other Stories, to be published Sept. 18 by Houghton Mifflin.

McDowell, Obolensky reports that Anthony C. West's novel of Dublin, The Native Moment, coming this fall, "is at once funnier, grimmer, and more poetic than most."

Irving Werstein, who has just completed Abraham Lincoln Versus Jefferson Davis, coming in October from Crowell, has already begun work again on a book with the blizzard of 1888 as a background.

The Ted Kautzky Memorial Book, by Charles R. Kinghan, will have 14 pages in full color with extra copies of these color pages so that purchasers can frame them. The book will be published late this fall by Reinhold.

Joseph Donon, winner of a surprising number of honors as an exponent of French cooking, has collected recipes, from the most elaborate dishes to simple but delicious foods, for The Classic French Cuisine, which Knopf will publish Sept. 21.

October 6 is the publication date set for the fifth volume of Lincoln Finds a General, by Kenneth P. Williams (Macmillan).

The manuscript of The Complete Aficionado has just been delivered to Houghton Mifflin by Barnaby Conrad, author of several very popular books on the bullring. It will be a true encyclopedia, with many photographs and drawings from Conrad's own collection.

Perry Mason's next appearance will be in The Case of the Singing Skirt, Erle Stanley Gardner's story of a pistol-packing songstress (Morrow, Sept.).

Brede Klefos, a Norwegian cadet at the time of the German invasion, tells of his experiences with the underground and of his escape in They Came in the Night. Harian will publish this autobiographical record in September and Crown will distribute it.

At the age of 64, Norbert Wiener, distinguished MIT mathematician, will have his first novel published. It is called The Tempter, a modern version of the Faust legend. Random House will publish it this fall.

Some time this fall Holt will publish Robert Ruark's new novel, Poor No More, in which a boy hungers for wealth and during the passing years gains it by unscrupulous means.

An airbase in Japan is the setting for Elliott Arnold's novel about a damaged plane and the fearful suspense of those with friends or loved-ones aboard it. It is called Flight from Ashiya (Knopf, Sept. 14).

Marchette Chute's Two Gentle Men (Dutton, Sept. 14) concerns the two poets, George Herbert and Robert Herrick.

For the first time in many months, "Doctor Zhivago" has been forced out of first place on the fiction best seller list, and not by a new book but by "Exodus," published last September. "Exodus" has been climbing up the list instead of falling down. From an inauspicious publication date sale it has become increasingly popular by a sort of geometrical progression. This popularity has been made evident in its rental library success as well as in sales. It has done well in the public libraries, too, but ranks only fifth on the library list instead of first as it does on the other two lists. This comparative lack of favor in the public libraries may be due to patrons' conservatism—they are still reading "Anatomy of a Murder"—or it may be because of their preference for substantial reading like "Doctor Zhivago."

But in all the acclaim for "Exodus," a well-deserved acclaim, let's not forget to honor "Doctor Zhivago," which has led all sales for so many months. It is now third on the fiction list and would be sixth on a combined list.

Last month we mentioned that a big new book like "Command the Morning" might topple "Doctor Zhivago" from the lead. Actually it has outsold that book, but it has not come close to rivaling "Exodus." Of course, when our count of sales was made, it had had only days on the market but in the case of a Pearl Buck book a week on the market plus advance sales should be enough.

"The Ugly American" has been doing surprising things. Partly because of Congressional mention and partly because of Norton's enthusiastic and generous advertising, it has risen steadily on the wanted list—from seventh to fourth on the best seller list (it was already third on the public and rental library lists).

For the time being, at least, "Lady Chatterley's Lover" ranks fifth on the best seller list. If it is not barred permanently from the United States mails it may go even higher. Like "Command the Morning," it had had very little time on the market. The publisher reported 29,000 sold by publication date.

"Lolita" has returned to the roll of honor in seventh place. Actually its sale for the period covered wasn't too much below that of "The Ugly American," "Lady Chatterley's Lover," and "The Spinster"—nor very much above that of "The Lion and the Rose." The latter went P. O. or it might well have been a rank or two higher on the list.

"Measure My Love" was bound to be a best seller or near it on the strength of "The Wheel of Earth," the Sandburg name, and its own merit.

Ruth Suckow's "The John Wood Case" places tenth by a very narrow margin. If "Celia Garth" and "The Chinese Box" had been published when we made our count (they were due on the 20th and 24th respectively), they would have been best sellers. "Celia Garth" had already sold well enough to rank sixth on the best seller list, with "The Chinese Box" a few copies behind it. Both books should be high on next month's list.

Pushed off the list by newcomers and "Lolita" were the "The Watch That Ends the Night," "The Sensualists," "Alas, Babylon," "The Hourglass," "Mountolive," and "Dear and Glorious Physician." That's quite a number of displaced books. Of these books "Dear and Glorious Physician" sold best, with "Mountolive" and "The Watch That Ends the Night" next (with exactly the same sale), followed by "Alas, Babylon" and "The Sensualists." But the closest rival of the best sellers was "This Fiery Night," which outsold by a little "Dear and Glorious Physician" and "The Middle Age of Mrs. Eliot."

In non-fiction "The Status Seekers" is the easy leader, though it would rate only third on a combined list of fiction and non-fiction. It jumps at once into the success that "The Hidden Persuaders" built up over months. Already it is being discussed and referred to. We even saw a real estate ad that appealed to executives who wished to establish their status—and this before the book was officially published. It will be hard for it to excel or rival the record of "The Hidden Persuaders" but we think it has a very good chance. It offers every reader an opportunity to point out the snobbishness of others.

"Twixt Twelve & Twenty" has been forced to take second place on the non-fiction list and fourth place on a composite list—its first real setback.

The wildly popular "Mine Enemy Grows Older" has also suffered, dropping from third place to fourth. It has been supplanted by "My Brother Was an Only Child," another book whose success has undoubtedly been helped by the Jack Paar TV show. "Only in America" dropped from fourth place to tenth.

Seven of the non-fiction leaders are new. Besides "The Status Seekers" they are "My Brother Was an Only Child," "Letters from Mamma" (another Jack Paar show book), "A Round of Golf with Tommy Armour," "I Remember," "Endurance," and "How I Turned $1,000 into a Million in Real Estate in My Spare Time" (if you don't make the million in twenty years you can get your money back—but without interest).

The closest rival of the non-fiction best sellers was the "Wise Garden Encyclopedia."

There have been few changes in the lists of public and commercial library favorites, except that "Dear and Glorious Physician" is a new arrival on both lists. On the public library list it replaced "Aku-Aku." In the rental libraries "The Hourglass" and "Dear and Glorious Physician" pushed out "Tenderloin" and "Lady L."

The ABA Convention

PLANS HAVE BEEN completed for the 1959 ABA Convention, which will be held at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D. C., June 14-17.

Among the celebrities who will be present at the convention and trade exhibit are Harry Golden, Tommy Armour, Vance Packard, Russell Lynes, Herbert Block, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Fred Astaire. Mr. Astaire, author of the forthcoming "Steps in Time," will be honored by his publisher, Harper, at a cocktail party just before the ABA Anniversary Banquet. Mr. Astaire, along with Harry Golden, whose book "For 2¢ Plain" (World) is announced for July, will be guests of honor at the banquet.

Hotel reservations for the convention must be made through the ABA office, but confirmations will come directly from the hotel.

A large trade exhibit is being planned, with an International Section to continue through June 18. The entire trade exhibit will be in one large room to facilitate viewing by booksellers.

Highlight of the convention's first day is the opening of the trade exhibit at noon. Exhibits will be open every day of the convention whenever other events are not scheduled. At 5:30 P.M. a reception is planned for those attending an ABA convention for the first time. From 6:00 to 8:00 a gala cocktail party and buffet supper will be held.

On the second day, the opening business session, at 9:00 A.M., will feature an address by Clarence Randall, special assistant to President Eisenhower in the field of foreign economic policy, on "The Place of the Individual in Today's Economy." Luncheon at 12:30 will have Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Russell Lynes, and Tommy Armour as guests. At 3:00 P.M. there will be a business session followed by a panel discussion on "Books and Culture as Status Symbols," with Vance Packard as guest of honor.

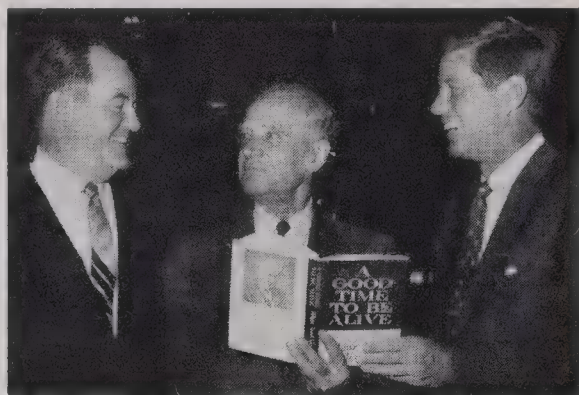

Features of the third day will include luncheon with Herbert Block and Roy Campanella as guests of honor, and panels at various times throughout the day on such subjects as "Creating Greater Profits for Booksellers," "A Survey of Department-Store Buying Techniques," and "The Bookseller's Role in Fairs."

The main attraction of the fourth and last day of the Convention will be the ABA 59th Anniversary Banquet and Dance.

Many prizes will be awarded booksellers attending the Convention. Golden Press is awarding a 1959 Ford "Country Sedan"; Revell will offer a two-week, all-expense trip for two to Europe and the Holy Land, including the Frankfurt Book Fair; Simon & Schuster is giving a complete set of matched Tommy Armour MacGregor Golf Clubs. ABA's own grand prizes to be given in connection with the trade exhibit include a stereophonic Norelco tape-recorder and a portable stereophonic hi-fi Motorola record-player. The Revell prize is actually the award for that firm's window-display contest. Farrar, Straus & Cudahy will award a Lark station wagon to a bookseller either at the convention or later. All prizes, including the $50 award given by Ida and George Eliot for the best letter or telegram to any bookseller's Congressman in support of Fair Trade, will be awarded at the dance.

The ABA has also announced that for the first time it will award a number of valuable prizes to official representatives of exhibitor and associate-publisher member firms.

Edgar Ansel Mowrer, asks Senators Humphreys and Kennedy whether they will say it's "A Good Time to Be Alive" at the end of the Democratic Convention. Mowrer's book by this title has just been published

Introducing Next Month's Books

The four obvious fiction leaders of June are "The Light Infantry Ball," by Hamilton Basso (Doubleday, June 2); "The Young Titan," by F. Van Wyck Mason (Doubleday, June 4); "California Street," by Niven Busch (Simon & Schuster, June 22); and "The Lion," by Joseph Kessel (Knopf, June 22). They are listed in the order of publication. Any one of the four may have the honor of leading sales, though of course the odds are in favor of the well-known authors. All four books have special qualifications. "The Light Infantry Ball" is a finished and intelligent story of John Bottomley of Pompey's Head at the outbreak of the Civil War. "The Young Titan" is also a historical novel—of a Maine shipbuilder during the French and Indian War—with perhaps more color and dash than "The Light Infantry Ball," with, as well, a greater dependence upon these physical accoutrements of narrative than upon the character interpretation and social portraiture that is one of the chief glories of "The Light Infantry Ball."

"California Street" is the Literary Guild selection for July. It seems to combine the virtues of the two historical novels—it has a very strong narrative pull, a background full of color and movement, and a dramatis personae that is varied and vivid. There is no doubt that it will be a very strong contender for top honors. It is modern and it is full of story-pull.

The really problematic book is "The Lion"—not that there is any doubt about its being one of the top best sellers. In its own way, it's almost as striking as "Lolita," and in this reader's opinion it's better written. Some parts of it are as thrillingly beautiful as "Green Mansions"; some parts of it are shocking and unbelievable. In brief it is the story of a young girl whose great love is a full grown lion, who lets her pummel him about, pull his hair, pretend to gouge out his eyes, and in general behaves like an exceedingly good-natured Saint Bernard. Yet Patricia, partly because of jealousy of his lionesses and partly because of feminine vanity, promotes a conflict between the lion and a native warrior who wants her as a wife—thus destroying both of them. There are going to be loud outcries about this book, but we can promise that few, if any, readers will drop it once they've begun to read it.

Our own special favorite of the month is "Born of the Sun," by John H. Culp (Sloane-Morrow, June 17). Though he is an unknown author, his novel stands a very good chance of toward-the-top sales.

Gladys Taber, who has been very popular as a writer about country living and about her father, has turned her considerable talents to a warm, even sentimental, yet at the same time realistic (as realism goes in such books) novel about life in a small college community and especially about the affairs of the Prescotts (whose head suggests the altogether human hero of "Especially Father.") We think "Spring Harvest" (Putnam, June 10) is sure of good sales at the least and possibly top sales. It is, incidentally, the choice of the Family Reading Club.

Zoé Oldenbourg's two historical novels were best sellers. "The Awakened," her previous modern novel, didn't match them in sales but did well. Now comes "The Chains of Love" which carries on from "The Awakened." In it Elie and Stephanie meet again—the two who fell so completely and passionately in love when he was nineteen and she was seventeen. Now Elie comes back from imprisonment, but Stephanie finds she is in love with someone else. It should approximate the sales of its predecessor.

"Ludmilla," by Paul Gallico (Doubleday, June 4), should do pretty well, largely on the strength of its authors' previous success. "With This Ring," by Emilie Loring (Little, Brown, June 22), is a romance of the type that always hits the best seller list or near it. "The Case of the Mythical Monkeys," by Erle Stanley Gardner (Morrow, June 10), is sure of his customary excellent sales and rentals.

These are all books by known authors or with fairly predictable markets. Others are not quite so predictable. "The Big X," by Hank Searls (Harper, June), is a Harper Find, which always means excellent sales for a book. "Taos," by Irwin R. Blacker (World, June 15), is a long, panoramic novel about a murderous uprising of the Indians of New Mexico back in pre-Revolutionary days. It has an almost majestic sweep that should certainly bring it good sales at least. "Blow up a Storm," by playwright Garson Kanin (Random, June 19), is about Woody Woodruff and his music and those who make music. Though it deals with the private lives of these temperamental people, it will, we think, be of special interest to those who can understand the joys and agonies of the musician. "The Cool World," by Warren Miller (Little, Brown, June 3), is a shocking and tragic picture of a teen-ager in Harlem, explaining the needs that drive many boys into the gangs of New York. "The Bridge on the Drina" by Ivo Andric (Macmillan, June 23), is a novel of the kind we used to call epic. It covers some three hundred years of Bosnian history, with a bridge over the River Drina as a focal point for dramatic moments of European conflicts. It deserves good sales. Three other novels to watch are "Chant of the Hawk," by John & Margaret Harris (Random, June 29), a dramatic story set in the west but not a "western"; "Love and Money," by Noel Clad (Random, June 1), the story of the years from 1917 to 1950 in the life of an Americanized Alsatian and his family; and "Sons of the Fathers," by N. Martin Kramer (Macmillan, June 30), the varied fortunes of six art students after they have left the University of California.

The biggest seller in non-fiction is undoubtedly the "Better Homes & Gardens Meat Book" (Meredith, June 15). This is a hard-bound book with more than 400 meat recipes, directions for selecting, storing, and serving, and 275 illustrations. It will be promoted in the way that regularly makes best sellers of B H & G books.

Next on the list we'd put "Tahiti Nui," by Eric de Bisschop (McDowell, Obolensky, June 8), a book about a famous explorer-writer's journey from Tahiti to Chile to disprove some of the theories Thor Heyerdahl hoped to prove with "Kon Tiki." Eric de Bisschop was an adventurer, an explorer, and a man who didn't hesitate to speak boldly and directly. His book is a thrilling travel tale, of course; furthermore, his arguments are a challenge and a delight. "Tahiti Nui" may well be a best seller.

"Steps in Time," Fred Astaire's sprightly autobiography (Harper, June 24), will be one of its chief competitors. Remember Bing Crosby's "Call Me Lucky"? We see no reason why "Steps in Time" shouldn't have somewhat the same kind of success. It is, too, in one sense a more personal story—or perhaps we should say more moving story—than Bing's because it contains its moments of sorrow as well as its joy. And of course it is a star-studded chronicle. The fact that Fred Astaire has just won three TV awards will help.

A good many of us remember the subject of "Senator Joe McCarthy" with strong feeling; Richard H. Rovere really takes him apart in this biography (Harcourt, Brace, June 17). A fore-runner of this book in Esquire indicated that sales will be in the top bracket.

As usual "Lovejoy's College Guide" in the new edition (Simon & Schuster, June 22) will be a near best seller or thereabouts in paper and will do pretty well in cloth.

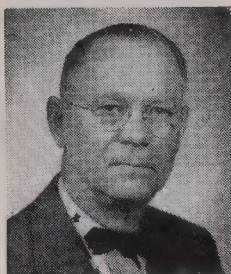

Next in order come five books that will have better than average sales. Two are postponements from May: "Image of America," by R. L. Bruckberger (Viking, June 6), and "Ingrid Bergman: An Intimate Portrait," by Joseph Steel (McKay, June 15). New to the list are "A Rockefeller Family Portrait: From John D. to Nelson," by William Manchester (Little, Brown, June), sure to be very popular if only because Nelson Rockefeller is the most exciting political personality since Willkie; "Yoga for Americans," by Indra Devi (Prentice-Hall, June 15), "a six-week course"; and "Dear Friends and Darling Romans," a charming and intelligent book by Mary Chamberlin (Lippincott, June 3). Perhaps we should also include "Richard Nixon," by Earl Mazo (Harper, June 17), which is as impartial a picture of a politician as could be managed and is bound to please some and infuriate others. And Inglis Fletcher has written a very engaging chronicle of her adventures with her mining-engineer husband, "Pay, Pack and Follow" (Holt, June 1).

There are more books, too, that may outsell the obvious leaders.

The Editor's Choice of the Month

BORN OF THE SUN, by John H. Culp

To be published by Sloane-Morrow on June 17—$4.95

John H. Culp

There are all sorts of surprising treasures in "Born of the Sun," and they are treasures that won't vanish in a night or a month or a year. What reader, for instance, will ever forget Huck Finn's adventure with the Royal Nonesuch? Or the shrewd, drawling humor of Will James? Or the excitement of the Virginian's showdown with Trampas? "Born of the Sun" has enough such moments to provide any number of hit T.V. shows or Oscar-winning movies. It is rich in humor, in atmosphere, and in colorful action.

It is the story of young Martin, orphaned by the Civil War, who comes to Tail End ranch in Texas to live with his Uncle Martin and Aunt Maybelle. Like "Little Britches," he grows up in this man's world and learns to stand on his own hind legs. Indeed, by the end of the book his Red River drive has become one of the tall tales of Texas—and a true one. It is the story of men who have to make their own law (ex-Rangers doggedly hunt down their murderous quarry even though the North has put a price on their own heads). It's a story of rough humor—like the joshing when Martin gets his tongue stuck on an icy wheel; of picturesque ways, like two-gunned Ma Huddleston's cedar grove, each tree planted over an Indian she has killed, or Rich Coffee's famous buffalo skin coat and hood, with the horns left on. And it's a story of men and women with courage and the tenacity to fight weather, poverty, Indians, and bitter weather—and win—without losing their ability to love.

BARNEY, BRING YOUR BANJO

$2.50

May Justus

Holt

A happy, easy to read story for six to nine year olds. Set in southern mountain country, of course, as it is authored by May Justus. It tells how young Barney set out on his grandmother's advice to learn the complete words and tune to an old song, "Tale of a Pig." He had been invited to play his homemade gift banjo and sing at a big play Saturday evening on the other side of the mountain. This would be his chance to show his famous music-maker Uncle Barney that he had learned to play his banjo. With the help of neighbors up and down the trail he learned all the verses in time. Illustrated in good, black-and-white drawings by Jean Tamburine. June 15.

beautiful and colorful pictures which are not at all ordinary. These, with a judicious use of prose, do an excellent job of showing what Paris is. The pictures are varied. Some are of humans—the porter at the Halles carrying a beef carcass, the elite Republic Guard trotting their steeds in splendor; some are of big things—the Pantheon, Notre Dame, the Arc de Triomphe, the Eiffel Tower on two pages; and then there are small things, alley cats, nun's hats, and subway tickets. This is just the book to introduce a child to a fascinating foreign city, for any older child studying France, and the greatest for any adult who has ever been to Paris or dreams of going there. THE FIRST BOOK OF SHIPS

Jeanne Bendick

Watts

Briefly the facts are here, so many catagories of ship fare and sea knowledge that to list them all would be to copy this new First Book, the 100th of the series. You can't miss the diagrams, the charts, the illustrations (by the author) as they read as part of the text itself. These simple explanations clarify words for land lubbers: draft, beam, fathom, halyards, frames, plimsoll lines, flensing deck, barkentine, etc. From trireme to atomic ship, pleasure craft, to fishing fleet and cargo and warships, here are the whys and wherefores and navigation aids and even legends and sea monsters to make young readers and even old readers knowledgeable. Highly recommended to say the very least. May 6.

Teen Age

THE BEAST IN THE CAVE

$2.95

Mary Alice Philips

Watts

Cro-Magnon times recreated around the story of Stag Hunter-son growing into manhood among his people provide the plot and setting of "The Beast In the Cave." The ways of the people form the pattern of life and existence for these cave dwellers. Stag Hunter-son rebels against the set traditions as new ideas and inventions are feared. Bear Fighter-son becomes the young leader of the hunt while Stag Hunter-son, rebuffed for his thinking, retreats into his cave to become skilled at the art of drawing the huge beasts of his day on the cave walls. At times his life is in danger because of his strange behavior, but he is on his way to becoming the leader of his people, the future shaman. Realistically described, there is much action and drama in the daily life in the rituals and the dangers that constantly face these early people. A good addition to a library shelf of caveman books. Torson Gide is the illustrator. Teen Ages. June 15.

CHARLES DARWIN

$3.00

Sarah R. Riedman

Holt

Engrossing and well written, "Charles Darwin" is an exceptionally interesting book to read just for the pleasure of reading alone. However, it is a significant biography at this time, for this year is the 180th anniversary of Darwin's publication of his "Origin of Species." Darwin's early family background years evoke a picture of well-to-do English family life in the early 1800's that almost seems fictional, as do his later years in Queen Victoria's reign. Prominent names appear in association with him throughout his life—Josiah Wedgewood, Dr. Samuel Butler, Adam Sedgwick, Joseph Hooker, Asa Gray, Thomas Henry Huxley, etc. After two false career starts in medicine and the ministry, Darwin found enough material to occupy his full life as a result of accepting the position of naturalist on the British Admiralty brig, The Beagle. This five year voyage of exploration took him around South America and to the Pacific Islands. Back in England, married, he quietly spent years writing and rewriting the conclusions that stemmed from his close observation of nature. Ages 12-16. June 15.

EXPLORING CAVES

$2.75

Polly Longworth

Crowell

Polly Longworth's book could easily turn the reader into a spelunker. The requisites are good feet, a flair for adventure, a good buddy, and 3 sources of light. There is even a map of caves in the U. S. A. Known caves in our country number 5,000, and occur in every state except Delaware. Caves have been used by man since he evolved—used as living quarters, hiding places, and exploring sites. The Dead Sea Scrolls were hidden in caves about 160 B.C., and St. Michael's Cave in the Rock of Gibraltar was mentioned in a geography book in 45 A.D. There are chapters on equipment for climbing (helmets, lamps, and ropes) cave information (wind, water, lava, and ice), cave decoration (stalactites and stalagmites), animal life in caves (bats, fishes, and salamanders), and even the dangers of the sport (cave-ins and getting lost). This is a fine book for those interested in caves. It has an attractive format with interesting black-and-white illustrations by Gustave Schrotter. Ages 12-16. May 15.

GROWING YOUR OWN WAY: An Informal

Guide for Teenagers

$3.50

Ruth Bockner

Abelard-Schuman

There are many facets to adolescence and the growing up that is called becoming mature. Fortunately almost each new book offered in the field treats relating psychology with fresh, interesting, and varying approaches. As such, the thoughts developed by Dr. Bockner center around relationships of family, friend, teacher, and others. Understanding attitudes and motives of people leads to a better knowledge of how to live with oneself. The chapter headings are indicative of the scheme of the book. "You," "Inside the Family," "Individual Differences," "Normality," "The Physical You," "You and Your Friends," "You and Your Teachers," and "Growing On." Feelings, fears, decisions, learning—so much of the experience of actual living is here thoughtfully and reasonably discussed that it should aid any and all interested in becoming better adjusted individuals. May 15.

THE LAND AND PEOPLE OF

$2.95

Raymond A. Wohlrabe & Werner

Krusch

Lippincott

A studious coverage is here given of one of our nearer South American neighbors. Venezuela has made its share of our newspaper headlines with revolutions and oil company financial reports. It is somewhat known by visiting tourists who manage to see glamorous Caracas, the capital city, and its seaports. To give background to such slight knowledge as mine, the authors have largely delved into readable history from the days of Columbus to those of Simon Bolivar, a native Venezuelan who fought and helped win separation from Spain for this country and others. More current political affairs are presented matter of factly without pro and con comments. The various land areas, the llanos, the jungles, the Andean region, and the seacoast are carefully described, as are the economic situations of each. The people as such are hard to distinguish from their regional settings. Nothing much has been left out for the more serious reader. An excellent addition to the "Portraits of the Nations Series" for schools and libraries. With photographs. Ages 12-16. May 13.

LOOKOUT SUMMER

$2.75

Aileen Lorberg

Lothrop, Lee & Shepard

An unusual occupation for a girl's summer vacation, but Vickie was set to spend the summer alone, high in a lookout tower in the Salamook National Forest. For company she had her violin to play and practice, which she hoped would lead to a decision on the future of her career in music. The beginning descriptions of her job are well written and brought to mind the stories of a college friend who took on such a vacation job—complete with violin, too. The tempo of the story soon gets involved in Vickie's character. She is inconsiderate, selfish, and has to adjust to a roommate, Val, when she sprains her ankle. There is a bit of feuding among the rangers, a new romantic, but unseen, interest in the young dispatcher, Lindsay, and of course the excitement and danger of actual fires. The book is at its best when it sticks to the job at hand—of the work of the fire-lookout posts. Ages 12-16. June 15.

PIONEERS IN PETTICOATS

$3.00

David K. Boynick

Crowell

One thinks of pioneers in petticoats as those brave women who crossed the prairies when our country was young. But here these pioneers are not in that category. They crossed prairies of a different nature—the prairies of ignorance and fear, the high mountains of superstition and prejudice. Their goal was to make a place for women next to man and not beneath him, and their great strength was courage. Included are Mary Lyon, founder of a college, Susan B. Anthony, fighter for woman's suffrage, Belva Ann Lockwood, a pioneering lawyer, Antoinette Brown, first ordained woman minister, Alice Hamilton, a doctor in industrial plants, Lillian M. Gilbreth, efficiency engineer, Amelia Earhart, the first lady of flying, and Dorothy Shaver, head of Lord & Taylor Department Store. Interestingly told, each of these stories points up the hardship which the women endured and shows how each had the strength to hold on to her convictions. An inspiring book—especially at this time when there is so much concern over the development of the individual versus the "Organization Man." It will give the girl of today some of the insights necessary to live an interesting life. 12 up. May.

SPREAD THE TRUTH: The Life of

Horace Greeley

$3.00

W. J. Granberg

Dutton

There was something about Horace Greeley—something that made people sit up and notice him—something that made people think. He wore outlandish and shabby clothes, had bad manners, a shrill voice, and squinty eyes, but the inner man was a seething cauldron of ideas. When the cauldron spilled over into burning editorials the readers were often seared. Horace cared not a whit for popularity, but for the truth. His life was one of hardship. He was born to an abysmally poor family in Vermont. His father was a shiftless man too fond of the bottle. His mother, however, gave him his love of learning and saw to it that whenever it was possible he went to school. He started when he was only 2 years old. His intense love of books and all things intellectual was a driving force in his life. When he was still a small boy he carved 5 letters into wooden blocks. They spelled TRUTH, and the first sentence he printed as a small lad read "Let there be light." These served as effective mottos for his whole life. If he had a fault it was that he never really learned to think his ideas through. His greatest contribution came through his writing. His political aspirations were his undoing, and his defeat by thousands of votes when he ran for the Presidency against Grant led to his death in a mental hospital in 1872. An excellent biography. One suffers with this lad. It is largely and correctly slanted toward Greeley the writer. Ages 12 up. June 30.

A WAY OF KNOWING: A Collection of

Poems for Boys

$3.50

Gerald D. McDonald, compiler

"A Way of Knowing" is an unusual book. Educators, particularly, are often disturbed with the number of children, especially boys, who do not like poetry (or at least say they don't). This book may help solve the problem. First of all, it is an attractive book. Even the cover is masculine. The type is good, and there is not too much on a page. All this is fine to attract even the reluctant. It's what's on the pages that will hold them. Selection is rather a personal matter, and Gerald McDonald has done a good job keeping boys in mind. The poems are divided into categories such as "Come and See," "Stand and Stare," "Fur, Fin and Feather," "Wondering," "Live and Learn," "Hear My Tale," "O, Pioneers," "Rise and Go," and "For You." There are lines from Wordsworth, W. H. Davies, Kenneth Grahame, Rupert Brooke, William Blake, and many others as well as some selections from the Bible. Included are the familiar "As I walked out in the streets of Laredo" and "I should like to rise and go where the golden apples grow" to the not so familiar "I wish they would hurry up their trip to Mars, those Rocket gentlemen." A good book for boys, we believe, with plenty of the good, strong, sturdy, and practical thoughts that are contained in poetry, and none that are sentimental, soft, or mawkish. Ages 12 up. May.

Publishers who wish their books for children considered for this list and "Recommended for Library Purchase" should submit proofs six weeks or more in advance of publication—to

The Award was for "The Riddle of Roman Catholicism," considered by six judges to be the best manuscript submitted. Dr. Pelikan teaches theology at the University of Chicago

The New York Herald Tribune has announced the winners of its 1959 Children's Spring Book Festival Awards. In the ages 4-8 category, the prize winner is "Sia Lives on Kilimanjaro," by Astrid Lindgren (Macmillan). Honor winners are "The Blackbird in the Lilac," by James Reeves (Dutton); "The Pointed Brush," by Patricia Miles Martin (Lothrop); "The Raggle Taggle Fellow," by Miriam Schlein (Abelard-Schuman); and "How St. Francis Tamed the Wolf," by Elizabeth and Gerald Rose (Harcourt, Brace). In the ages 8-12 category, the prize winning book is "The Long-Nosed Princess," by Priscilla Hallowell (Viking). Honor winners in this group are "The Borrowers Afloat," by Mary Norton (Harcourt, Brace); "The Colt from the Dark Forest," by Anna Belle Loken (Lothrop); "Magic or Not?" by Edward Eager (Harcourt, Brace); and "Treasurer of the High Country," by Jonreed Lauritzen (Little, Brown). For ages 12 and over, the prize winner is "An Edge of the Forest," by Agnes Smith (Viking). Honor winners in this age category are "Land of Foam," by Ivan Yefremov (Houghton, Mifflin); "The Black Symbol," by Annabel and Edgar Johnson (Harper); "The Lion's Whiskers," by Russell Davis and Brent Ashabranner (Little, Brown); and "The Silver Sword," by Ivan Serrailier (Criterion).

Miss Norma Klein, a Barnard College Junior, has won the fifth annual Elizabeth Janeway prize for literature, which is awarded to the Barnard undergraduate who "gives the greatest evidence of creative imagination and sustained ability." This year's judges were John Cheever, novelist and short story writer; Arabel Porter, editor of "New World Writing"; and Seymour Lawrence, editor-in-chief of the Atlantic Monthly Press.

"Tom's Midnight Garden," an English juvenile by Philippa Pearce, has just won that country's Library Association's Carnegie Medal, an award comparable to the American Newbery Award. Lippincott will publish the book here next September.

Jack and Jill magazine is offering a $1,000 prize and publication in book form for original stories suitable for publication in a series of six or more chapters. The contest closing date is October 30, 1959, and full details may be obtained from Contest Editor, Jack and Jill, Curtis Publishing Company, Independence Square, Philadelphia.

The Eugene F. Saxton Memorial Trust, set up by Harper to help authors, has granted a fellowship to Norma Gangel Stahl of New York City to finish a novel, tentatively called "The Changelings." Miss Stahl is the author of published short stories and has been a teacher, a copy editor, and a book designer.

Macmillan has just announced that the first annual Macmillan Fiction Award, of $7,500, has been made to John Berry of California. The winning novel, "Krishna Fluting," is set in the foothills of the Himalayas and concerns the conflicts in a man of mixed Quaker and Hindu heritage. It will be published October 26.

Mr. Berry has been awarded the Teague Poetry Prize, the Phelan Fellowship for Poetry, two Huntington Hartford Fellowships, and a MacDowell grant.

The annual Macmillan Fiction Award is open to writers of every nationality. The next contest will open on January 1, 1960 and close March 31, 1960.

News from Publishers

A NEW GUIDE to recent children's books was published by the University of Chicago Press on May 19. Entitled "Good Books for Children," the volume is edited by Mary R. Eakin and is devoted to books published between 1948 and 1957. 100 titles from each year were selected from those favorably reviewed in the Bulletin of the Center for Children's Books, a magazine sponsored by the University of Chicago's Graduate Library School. Listings in "Good Books for Children" are divided according to age group, subject matter, and areas of curricular use, and each title is accompanied by a brief review. The new guide is designed to supplement such recent works as Nancy Larrick's "A Parent's Guide to Children's Reading," sponsored by the National Book Committee, and The Baker & Taylor Co.'s "Best Books for Boys and Girls."

Jewels created by the famous surrealist artist, Salvador Dali, will be discussed in a text accompanied by full color plates in "Dali, A Study of His Art-in-Jewels," which will be brought out by the New York Graphic Society on June 15 at a list price of $7.50. The Owen Cheatham Foundation, which has acquired the Dali jewels, has cooperated in the publication and will make the entire collection available for fund-raising purposes of charitable organizations. The Graphic Society's volume will be used as the official catalog wherever the jewels are displayed.

"The Air Force Blue Book," edited by Tom Compere and William P. Vogel, Jr., has been brought out by the Military Publishing Institute, Inc. Including air history and current facts, the volume is available in a soft-cover edition at $1.00 and in a deluxe hard-cover, published for the Institute by Bobbs-Merrill, at $4.95.

W. W. Norton has announced a one-free-for-ten prepublication offer and $5,000 initial advertising for Robert Paul Smith's forthcoming "And Another Thing . . ." scheduled for August 17 publication.

Grosset & Dunlap has announced a 2-for-1 series books sale offering free copies of books in the Hardy Boys, Nancy Drew, Bobbsey Twins, Cherry Ames, and Tom Swift, Jr., series. For each #1 title ordered, a free copy of the #2 title will be sent. There is no minimum order requirement, but the total number of free books must be balanced by an order of four times that amount of other Grosset & Dunlap series titles. The deadline for reorders is June 17.

The Milton Bradley Company has developed a new teaching aid which employs cowboy and Indian playing pieces to instruct in counting from one to ten and in elementary addition and subtraction. Entitled "Count-to-Ten with Cowboys and Indian," the aid is designed for children in kindergarten and the first two grades.

Harold R. DeJager, secretary-treasurer of Oxford University Press, has been elected president of the New York City Control of the Controllers Institute of America. A University of Minnesota graduate and a certified public accountant.

John Lowell Pratt, president of the American Sports Publishing Company and a former president of A. S. Barnes, has announced an expanded program in the sports books and related fields. New books will be published under the American Sports Publishing Company imprint and complete book "packages" will be prepared for other publishers as well.

Cliff Arquette, author of "Letters from Mama," and a regular attraction on the Jack Paar television show, was a featured guest at the John C. Winston 75th anniversary program at the Philadelphia Booksellers Association dinner on May 7. Winston also presented Rear Admiral Joseph B. Icenhower, author of "Man Against the Unknown," and Donald Cox, author of "Man In the Universe."

Walter I. Bradbury, Doubleday's managing editor for thirteen years, has been named vice-president and manager of the Trade Department of Henry Holt & Company.

The annual banquet of the Technical Association of the Graphic Arts, to be held in Rochester, New York, on June 16, will feature an address by Cyril N. Hoyler, manager of technical relations at RCA laboratories. Mr. Hoyler, a physicist and electrical engineer, will discuss "Electronics in Solids, Space, and Sound" before the meeting of representatives of the printing and allied industries.

Robert J. Cochrane has joined World's sales department. He will serve as assistant to Thomas J. Doran, trade sales manager, in the Cleveland office. Mr. Cochrane, a former sales representative for Simon & Schuster and for Rinehart, was at one time Rinehart's promotion and advertising manager.

The Mid-Century Book Society, a new book club, has been formed with an editorial board consisting of W. H. Auden, Jacques Barzun, and Lionel Trilling. The three editors, formerly associated with the Readers' Subscription, have announced that they will select "the most durable books that the mid-century can produce," and will also recommend notable children's books occasionally. A monthly literary magazine, entitled "The Mid-Century," and available only to members, will be published by the Society.

Knopf has announced the appointment of Augustus Thorndike, Jr. as sales manager. Mr. Thorndike has been associated with Houghton Mifflin, and more recently with Plimpton Press.

New vice-presidents at Crown include Herbert Michelman and Joseph Reiner. Mr. Michelman, who taught the course in publishing in New York's City College for three years, joined Crown as production manager in 1943 and has been administrative editor since 1949. He is president of Bell Publishing, a Crown subsidiary. Mr. Reiner, a vice-president of Bell Publishing and head of Crown's Bonanza Books Division, has been a member of the firm's sales department since 1942 and is sales representative for the midwest, Baltimore, and Washington, D. C.

The third National Library Week has been scheduled for April 3-9, 1960, it was recently announced. The reading promotion program is sponsored by National Book Committee in cooperation with the American Library Association.

Prentice-Hall has begun publishing original, quality paperbacks. Four titles are now available, with four more planned for fall. The first four volumes in the series are "The Causes of the Civil War," by Kenneth Stampp; "Immigration as a Factor in American History," by Oscar Handlin; "Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy," by Robert A. Harper; and "Fallacy: The Counterfeit of Argument," by W. Ward Fearnside and William Holther.

At a May 7 meeting, the Publishers' Lunch Club elected new officers for 1959-1960. George P. Brockway, president of W. W. Norton, was elected president; Raymond C. Harwood, president of Harper's, was chosen vice-president; and William M. Oman, vice-president of Dodd, Mead, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Seabury has obtained exclusive United States distribution rights of the S.P.C.K. series, "For A Priest's Library." Each volume will retail for $2.75 with a special rate of $2.50 each on subscriptions to the entire series. The first five titles will be available in late summer: "The Curate of Souls," edited by John R. H. Moorman; "How Shall They Hear?" by Gordon W. Ireson; "Eight Lectures on Preaching," as delivered by Phillips Brooks; and "The Heart of a Priest," by W. C. Newbolt.

The American Library Association, as part of a national project to promote understanding of Asia among Americans, has planned for June publication a handbook for adult leaders, "Richer by Asia; A Selected Bibliography of Books and Other Materials Recommended for Promoting West-East Understanding among Young Adults." Prepared by a committee of the Young Adult Services Division of the A. L. A., the handbook also includes discussion ideas, suggested demonstration programs, and sources of films and other materials.

The complete list of technical books published by Sams (recent purchaser of the Bobbs-Merrill Co.) is now being offered to the trade at regular trade discounts.

Random House is planning a new advertising campaign for "The Catholic Marriage Manual," of which 40,000 copies have been sold since its publication in November of 1958. Among the media selected to carry advertising are The Boston Pilot, Extension Magazine, The St. Anthony Messenger, The Sign, Modern Bride, New York Times Book Review, Denver Register, and others. Random House has scheduled publication of a companion volume, "The Catholic Family Handbook," by the same author, Reverend George A. Kelly, for November of this year.

"The Renewal of Hope," by Howard Clark Kee, has been postponed from May 6 to June 22 because it has been made the July selection of the Pulpit Book Club. A Haddam House book of Association Press, it will be advertised in religious media.

Charles E. Pettee, a former editor in the College Department at Oxford University Press, has been named an editor in Scribner's college department. The 1955-56 Chairman of the College Publishers Group, Mr. Pettee is an Army veteran and has served in the College Section of the American Textbook Publishers Institute on the committees for Bookstore Relations.

Baltimore's Enoch Pratt Free Library has brought out the fourth edition of "Reference Books," compiled by Mary Neill Barton. Stewart Johnson has been elected secretary of Coward-McCann, it was recently announced. Mr. Johnson is also an editor with that firm.

As part of Messner's full-scale publicity for "Wife Dressing," Anne Fogarty, the author, will be appearing at Saks Fifth Avenue stores throughout the country. Here she is shown talking with a customer at the New York store where her book is being promoted in the Young Misses Dress department with the books on display in a gaily decorated cart

Plans for Reilly & Lee

THE APRIL ISSUE of the BBG carried a small notice to the effect that the Reilly & Lee Publishing Company of Chicago had just been purchased by the Henry Regnery Company of the same city.

According to Mr. Regnery, the Reilly & Lee Company will remain a separate entity, specializing in the field of general publishing with particular emphasis on juvenile books. Henry Regnery is now the president of Reilly & Lee. Other officers are William A. Donovan, vice president; Charles E. Lee, secretary; Charles Butler, treasurer. All Reilly & Lee personnel will also remain. Both firms should be addressed at 64 E. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago 4, Illinois, until the middle of June when they will move to larger quarters at 14 E. Jackson Boulevard, Chicago 4.

The firm which Regnery has just acquired was originally founded in 1902 as the Madison Book Company under the management of Frank K. Reilly, Sumner C. Britton, and John Foster. The name Reilly & Britton was incorporated in 1904 and 1919 was changed to Reilly & Lee.

Perhaps the leading publishing property owned by the company is the celebrated series of juvenile classics known as the Oz books. The first of the series, "The Wizard Of Oz," was published by a small independent Chicago firm, but in 1904 the second of Lyman Frank Baum's widely acclaimed stories, "The Marvelous Land Of Oz," was published by Reilly & Lee. It received more promotion and advertising space than any book previously published in this country. Today there are actually 40 Oz books in the series and it is the firm intention of the new proprietorship to re-establish them in their rightful sales position by extensive advertising and unique promotional operations.

The publisher strongly feels that there is a larger market eagerly awaiting the Oz books today than at any previous time in their history. Not only are they regarded by the children of America as their first choice, but many eminent authorities in literature, including James Thurber, Phyllis McGinley, Philip Wylie, and others have openly expressed their admiration for L. Frank Baum's books.

In addition to the Oz books, Reilly & Lee also publishes the works of Edgar A. Guest, the "101 Famous Poems," and has exclusive distribution of the Chicago Lying-in Hospital baby record book, "Baby's First Seven Years."

Bouregy Will Publish

JUST TOO LATE for inclusion in The Book Buyer's Almanac, we received news of three novels to be published by Thomas Bouregy, his only books of the year. All three will be published on June 15. They are

New Publisher

CLARKSEN N. POTTER, former managing editor of Dial Press and advertising manager of Doubleday, is establishing a new publishing house, Clarksen N. Potter, Inc. His first books will be issued early in 1960. He plans "to concentrate on high quality hardbound books, mostly of non-fiction in the upper price range," specializing in Americana, science, the arts, and contemporary life.

Local Author Partied

AN AUTOGRAPHING PARTY for Philip Roth, author of the Houghton Mifflin Fellowship Award book, "Goodbye Columbus," was held on May 7 at Frank Michelli Books, of Newark. Although it rained that day, the weather cleared by seven, when the party began. Frank Michelli reports an excellent attendance. Because Roth is a Newark-born author, the party assumed some of the characteristics of a family get together with friends, relatives, and admirers packing the shop until ten o'clock. Mr. Michelli sold 92 copies of the book that night.

A story hour featuring Joseph Hanson of South Orange, New Jersey, author of "Grandfather Todd of Old Cape Cod" was held on Friday, May 22 at Kresge-Newark. First, second, and third grade pupils from public and parochial schools in Newark and the suburbs were invited to attend.

The Walden Book Company at Kresge-Newark recently turned over the entire window shown in the photograph to Mr. Hanson's book. Hanson was a former director of the advertising department of the store

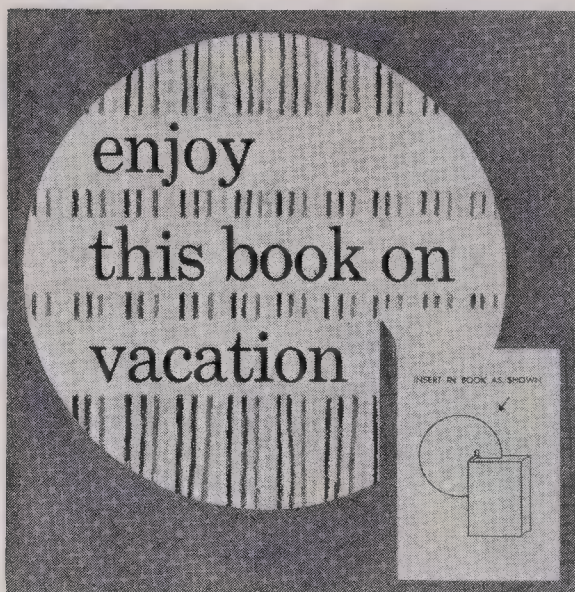

Times to Supply Book Kits

FOR THE ELEVENTH STRAIGHT YEAR, the New York Times will distribute vacation book kits to 750 book stores throughout the country containing display materials urging Americans to read during their vacations.

The Children's Book Council will also supply the kits to libraries and recreation centers at a price of $1.50.

The kits include color posters, counter cards, streamers, and inserts for books. Some of the slogans appearing on the display materials are "Good Books Add Pleasure to Your Vacation," "Books Make Summer Fun," and "This Summer Make Friends with Books."

OBITUARIES

CHARLES MERGENDAHL, author of "The Bramble Bush," died in Community Hospital, Glen Cove, Long Island, on April 27. He had suffered head injuries resulting from a fall in his home the day before. His age was 40.

Mr. Mergendahl's latest novel "The Bramble Bush," was published last summer and will soon be made into a motion picture. His other novels include "Don't Wait Up for Spring," 1944; "His Days Are as Grass," 1946; "This Spring of Love," 1948; "It's Only Temporary," 1950; "The Girl Cage," 1952; and "With Kisses Four," 1954.

DR. HOWARD W. HAGGARD, 68-year-old educator and author, died on April 22 in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Founder of the Yale Center of Alcohol Studies, Dr. Haggard was editor of that group's publication, the Quarterly Journal of Alcohol Studies. In 1929 he published "Devils, Drugs and Doctors," a best-seller dealing with the history of medicine.

BLAIR RICE NILES, novelist and author of travel books, died on April 13 in New York City. She was 71 years old. Mrs. Niles spent several months in French Guiana studying the French penal colony as research for her book "Condemned to Devil's Island" which was published in 1928. The book was later made into a motion picture entitled "Devil's Island." In 1941 Mrs. Niles received the Constance Lindsay Skinner Award in appreciation of her writing from the Women's National Book Association.

The author's books include "Black Haiti," "Columbia: Land of Miracles," "Peruvian Pageant," and many others.

VAUGHAN WILKINS, author of many historical novels, died on February 8 at the age of 68. His first published novel and most successful, "And So—Victoria," was published in this country in 1937. His other novels include "King Reluctant," "Endless Prelude," "Seven Tempest," "Being Met Together," "After Bath," "City of Frozen Fire," "Crown Without Sceptre," "A King Reluctant," "Once Upon a Time," and "Fanfare for a Witch." His latest book, "Consort for Victoria," was published by Doubleday on February 5.

GEORGE W. F. JOELL, president of Dial Press, died on April 28 at the age of 56 years. He was well known to the publishing world.

After graduating from Syracuse, he studied law and passed the bar examinations only to give up law for publishing. He worked first for Brentano, when it was a book publishing firm, back in 1928; then he became publicity man of Covici-Friede, in 1929.

In the meantime Burton Hoffman had bought Dial Press. George Joel joined him as advertising manager in 1938, became editor-in-chief and vice-president the next year, and took over management of Dial while Burton Hoffman was absent in the Armed Forces. Later, Mr. Joel bought Mr. Hoffman's interest in Dial and was elected president of the firm.

For Better Service Happier Patrons And (sh!) a Bigger Budget

OUTSTANDING BOOKS describes 10 books each month. It is prepared both as an extra service the public library can offer its community and as an introduction to new or library-shy members of the community. For regular patrons it provides a selection of new books. For others it is both an indication of their library's facilities and an invitation to profit from them.

A New Name - A New Beauty

Plus the dependable effectiveness known to hundreds of dealers for years

The Christmas Book Buyers Guide

It's an established catalog with a new verve! (several hundred booksellers distributed it as BOOKS FOR CHRISTMAS last year)—and 90% of those who replied to a questionnaire said they would definitely send it out again. We are sure they'll like it more than ever in its new form, find it more effective than ever.

THE CHRISTMAS BOOK BUYER'S GUIDE is your book catalog, made up for you at Book Headquarters (where you can buy the books included) with the full assistance of book publishers. You can buy 100 copies at 10 cents each, or 5000 copies at 6 cents each, or more, and be sure at either price that it's as fine a catalog as any bookshop can distribute.

The gay cover shown on the opposite page was done by Richard Martin and will be our regular cover—or, if you prefer, you can ask for a design cover.

The catalog will be printed on high quality paper; printing will be the best. There will be 36 pages in two colors of book descriptions and illustrations as decorative as those shown in the brochure (ask for it).

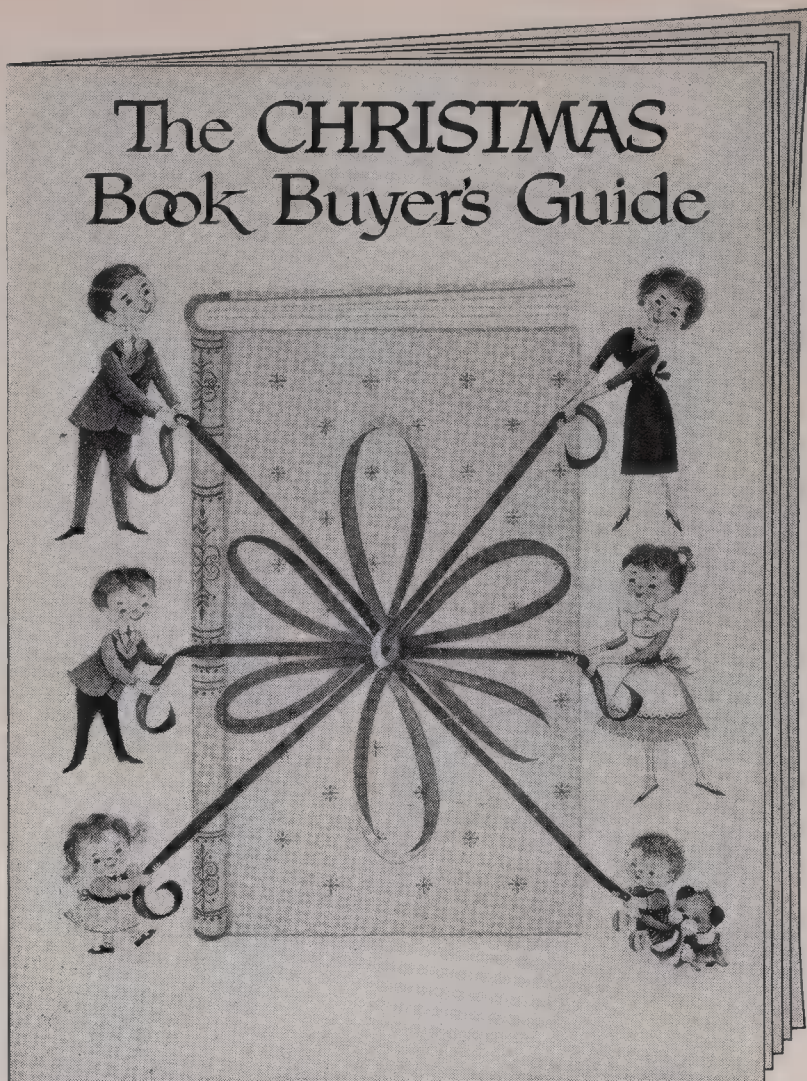

For your customers' convenience, two order blanks will be bound in the catalog. The catalog itself will have a gay decorative envelope.

Those who used the catalog last year said: "Worth its weight in gold"; "Very satisfactory in every way—we had good results"; "Perfect"; "We were well pleased"; "Definitely resulted in sales and assistance to clerks"; "We were delighted"; "Very satisfactory"; "Everything was satisfactory"; "We give full approval." And the 1959 edition will be even better!

WRITER'S MARKET

what they write

Every good library has one or more copies of THE WRITER'S MARKET because it is authentic, official and needed by citizens of every growing community. Contains the name, address and rate of payment of 3,000 markets for writers: plays, poems, stories, books, T.V., radio, jokes, syndicates, crosswords, articles — 3,000 buying markets. It's endorsed by big-name writers such as Fannie Hurst, Erskine Caldwell, and Faith Baldwin, who say WRITER'S MARKET ranks with the dictionary and typewriter as a writer's basic tool. 450 pages. Cloth bound WRITER'S MARKET sells for $4.50, paper bound $4.00. Do you have the 1959 edition? 1/3 off on 1 to 3 copies; 40% off on 4 or more (plus shipping).
